

1 | dx is defined as a small change in the positive direction

so dx defines the positive direction.

1.1 | In polar curves, $d\theta$ defines the positive direction. positive theta is counter-clockwise so your definite integral bounds should always go from negative to positive.