

1 | Welcome

Howdy ☐, welcome to Taproot, the connected Zettlekastenish braindump of Huxley, Albert, Zach, Houjun, Dylan, Peter, and David. Take a look around, either in person or using this Handy Web Portal.

This is the third version of the Taproot infrastructure. The website is set in `Helvetica Neue`, the generated PDFs are set in `Liberation Sans` and built using `xelatex`. Source files are written in or transpiled to `org` using `pandoc`, and built using `ox-html` and `org-publish`.

The software stack of Taproot is licensed under `GPL-3.0 License` and the text is licensed by `CC BY-NC-SA 4.0`. The license texts are available to view here and here respectively.

Taproot is organized under a few global indexes of subject-specific areas. Enter Taproot by following down these lovely rabbit holes of notes:

2 | Notes

2.1 | School Notes

- Physics (Mechanics and EM): Physics Global Index
- Biology: Biology Global Index
- Humanities @TheNuevaSchool
 - English: English Global Index
 - History: History Global Index
- Mathematics (Calc, not calc, etc. etc.): Mathematics Global Index
- Computer Science: Computer Science Global Index

There are secretly actually others, like Japanese or Spanish. But those are too bad for mere mortals to cast eyes on.

2.2 | Projects

Coming Soon!

2.3 | Personal Corners

- Huxley: Sort! with Huxley
- Jack: Jack's Personal Index
- David's entire notes: David's Notes Index

3 | Philosophy

Zettelkasten, maybe. But basically, create a repository of knowledge that should be easy to refer back to and effective for relearning things. We strive to create atomic, self contained notes that link to other references. Think a more granular Wikipedia.

4 | Joining Us

Its probably a bit hard (we all go to school in the same area, we generally take similar classes, etc.)

5 | Epilogue

Thanks for stopping by!

A "taproot" is a "large, central, and dominant root from which other roots sprout laterally" See Wikipedia.
Also, it's a food!