3.1 | Douglass

3.1.1 | Connection exists between rape (and the creation of offsprings) and economic value

This is done too obviously to administer to their own lusts, and make a gratification of their wicked desires profitable as well as pleasurable.

3.1.2 | The "lack" is modified more strongly than the cleanliness, that the niceness of north is much more emphasized when the imagery of the south is in mind

Every thing looked clean, new and beautiful. I saw few or no dilapidated houses, with poverty-stricken inmates; no half-naked children and barefooted women

3.1.3 | Children of common "Father" => that all that are African Americans still carry mark of slavery

Without home and without friends, in the midst of thousands of my own brethren—children of a common Father, and yet I dared not to unfold to any one of them my sad condition

3.1.4 | Demarcation of Slave Life into Monetary Value

that he was a good man, and that he could not think of taking me from him [i.e. killing him]; that, should he do so, he would lose the whole year's wages

3.2 | Jacobs

3.2.1 | The value in "Womanhood" exists only in procreation

Woman are considered of no value, unless they continually increase their owner's stock. They are put on a par with animals

3.2.2 | Slavery as a process that lowers womanhood

He rejoined, that a woman who had sunk to my level had no right to expect any thing else.

3.2.3 | Love is something that could be taken away and manipulated though slavery

Why does the slave ever love? Why allow the tendrils of the heart to twine around objects which may at any moment be wrenched away by the hand of violence?

3.2.4 | Children are exchanged for money is an insult

My children grew finely; and Dr. Flint would often say to me, with an exulting smile, "These brats will bring me a handsome sum of money one of these days."
